Fosfor

  EDIT

Not to be confused with Vosfor.

Fosfors are consumable Gear items, which upon use launches a bright glowing flare into the sky. This not only acts as a visual marker that allies can see to note the player's position, but it also increases that player's Affinity range from 50 m to 200 m for 2 minutes, allowing Affinity to be gained by and shared with squad mates much further away from the player. In Archwing missions, this range is multiplied fourfold into 800 m.

There are two types of Fosfors available, though the only difference between them is the crafting requirements and color of the flare launched.

Fosfor Blau

Launch a bright blue flare that significantly increases Affinity Range while active.

the payment will always be in Plains of Eidolon-exclusive resources.

Crafting a Fosfor in the Foundry will create 20 charges of the item for use.

Notes

- While the flare launched is centered on the location where the player used it, the affinity range buff affects the player themselves, allowing them to benefit from the range increase even while on the move.
- Fosfor is a personal item which only affects the player who used it. It does not provide extra Affinity range to squad mates who are far away from other squad mates without their own Fosfor buff.
- The duration of the Fosfor's effect can be seen on the upper right corner of the screen as a blue icon while active.
 - Using another Fosfor while a previous Fosfor is already active will refresh the duration of the previous cast for the player.
- Abilities that use Affinity Range instead of Power Range, i.e. Trinity's Blessing and Harrow's Covenant, benefit from the range increase granted by Fosfors.
- The effects of Fosfor Blau and Fosfor Rahd stack when used at the same time, increasing Affinity Range to 400m instead of 200m.

Trivia

- Fosfor* means Phosphor in multiple languages, which is a term used to describe luminescent substances.
- Phosphor* is commonly used to make fireworks.
- Blau* means Blue in German.
