Hey there!

If you accidentally applied an incompletely configured config and cannot use your devices, you can always use the CTRL+ALT+DEL shortcut to turn off the remap.

You need to completely remap your keyboard and mouse to the controller and apply the Mute function to all mappings to avoid double input in the game.

After applying the config, your devices will have input from the controller and will not work as usual, as it should be.

To return native input to devices, you need to go to a shift layer in which you do not have mappings (using a button mapped for this in your config).

Better make 2 shift Profile next time with global shortcut to switch. 😊

But unplugging the mouse helped afaiK. Controlling Windows with Keyboard only or mouse Mode can help either.
