Rogue Culverin

8 EDIT

MURMUR

CODEX

An experimental Necranech, optimized for ranged combat, built for Albrecht Entrati by his son-in-law. It now fights alongside the very Murmur foes it was meant to repel.

Rogue Culverins are rank-and-file Necranech units that can be found within Albrecht's Laboratories on Deimos.

Originally created to defend the Labs from The Murmur, they have long since malfunctioned and now fight alongside the very threats they were meant to destroy.

Behavior

Culverins are basic, rank-and-file, ranged Necramechs that wield two arm-mounted laser canons. Uniquely, they possess two weakspots on their arms in the form of green canisters. Destroying a canister will also destroy the respective arm along with its gun.

Rogue Culverins' canisters enhance all damage inflicted to them by an additional Critical Hit tier (i.e, a yellow crit is promoted to an orange crit). Additionally, this weakspot will charge up any Incarnon weapon used to damage it, but only the hit that actually destroys it will do so. It doesn't count as a headshot, however. Because Culverins do not have a head, it is not possible to activate Primary Deadhead, Longbow Sharpshot and similar effects that rely on headshots.

If both canisters are destroyed, the Culverin will enter a three-second self-destruct sequence, losing health rapidly and exploding upon death. The range of the blast is telegraphed on the ground and will damage nearby enemies as well.
