What's the max overguard you've hit with Dante?

Question/Request

And, of course, what setup did you use for it?

My current best is 144k with a Nidus assist. Strength is at about 300 with Augmented stacks, Nidus stats unknown but a purportedly good build. Could be easily increased by invigorations on either/both of us, so i'm wondering if we can hit 200k.

Reveal your secrets, I promise I'm not a front for DE!

I'm running Dante at 382% strength, using his exalted book as a support book with 4 tome invocations, electric, and 3 fire rate mods. With molt augmented, max invocation stacks, and hardened wellspring, that's 522% ability strength. I hit nearly 80k overguard with no external buffs (honestly thought it would be higher but whatever). With power strength buff from reactant, I hit 140k+

Idk what Nidus does to buff this but I can imagine the numbers would be completely stupid if the buff is that big

That seems..... kinda bad? Like yeah big number better but I'm hitting 50k with 160 Str, precision intensify and molt augmented while keeping a 70m radius on my 4 with infinite energy.

I've noticed Dante really doesn't scale that well off of Str. He really wants range and duration. Having your birds up giving status bonuses will give you way more damage than just pure str.

Welp, I think I made it close to theoretical max tonight. 359k, thanks to me and Nidus both getting the relic strength boost. I think 400k is currently achievable since neither of us were using max-strength builds. Unless there's another multiplicative boost I'm not thinking about it seems 500k might be out of reach. I'm going to keep pushing this until DE stops me though!
