So this thing works on Eidolon lures too?

Question/Request

It's very useful for my volt on hunts, because I can just focus on dps and not reviving my teammates lol, but I'm wondering if it's works on lures

As a Eido hunter, just do fast enough. If you destroy limbs fast enough=less move=less attack=more survivability. Tbh, eido ain't hard like the majority claims it to be, once you get into it seriously it's quite easy.

Yh I'm pretty new to the eidolon thing, like i already knew all the mechanics but never tried doing it more "seriously", but now since i already have all the important skills for my drifter and a good dps frame i'm starting to do it more often, ngl it's pretty fun

Holy shit I didn't even realize it also says allies, all this time I've been using it for selfish purposes and it turns out I'm actually a saint?

Instead of just do it faster, I'd suggest on the 2nd eido change position when the beams appear, there are lights on the ground and it roars b4 the beams themselves do damage. If you are still new and slow at the hunt don't stress to about fighting the 3rd one just practice on the 1st two but if your ultimate goal is energize then one simple thing you can go is park the lures on the island with the shrine or much further away until you either get to the last limb or as he has lost the last limb so that you can charge all of them

Tldr take them away from danger
