Just a PSA for anyone who makes gummies. Lorann Mold inhibitor will stop your gummies from molding but you can make it for much cheaper at home

It's $5.95 (Canadian) for a 1 ounce bottle of the stuff and you literally use 1/8th of a teaspoon (or less) per batch of gummies.

Alternatively, any form of acid - citric, malic, tartaric, fumaric, and ascorbic - are all natural mold inhibitors and will greatly reduce the chances of your gummies going moldy.

(Use the acid IN the mixture, not just as a sour coating).

Can this be bulked with water to make it slightly easier to measure? 1/8 tsp is like 0.6ml.
