How much temperature is too much when making gummy's.

I've been making gummy's for a while now but I'm always wary of using more heat because I don't want to destroy any thc. The problem is when I'm dosing it out in the molds it can become more solidified as it cools between the pan and mold. If I used more heat I could work with it longer but I don't wanna damage so about how high can I take it?

I like your procedure I'll be using that. Question, how many molds do you usually use? My mold isn't nearly enough for one batch and it solidifies so fast.

I try to keep my heat as low as possible. I've been using a sous vide recently at 140F and it's great.

Not sure specifically with gummies (just asked to be safe. I know THC is activated around 350F so pour.
