Items you will "need" (I say need because from my experience this will work the best. Results may vary based on your substitutions):

- Spatula for stirring
- Squeeze bottle <https://www.oxo.com/chef-s-squeeze-bottles-6-ounces.html>
- Small sauce pot with a pourable lip/spout (non-stick would be best, but not required)
- Soy or sunflower lecithin (I've used both soy and sunflower, powder and liquid - I don't think it matters which variation you use). This helps emulsify or bind the THC oil with the water mixture, and apparently it helps your body absorb the THC better shrug
- THC oil or distillate. Research which is your best solution. Distillate in vials are not available on the legal market, but the OCS sells a decent oil at an OK price: <https://ocs.ca/products/reign-drops-30-0-redecan> Using Distillate is flavourless and cheaper, but oils (if made from flower and not extract) should be full-spectrum and thus a different high than pure THC distillate.

Ingredients

- THC oil/distillate
- ½ tsp lecithin (soy or sunflower, powder or liquid)
- ⅓ cup room-temperature water
- ¼ cup corn syrup
- 1 pkg Knox unflavored gelatin (7.2g)
- 1 pkg flavoured Jello (not sugar free) - my fav is orange
- ¼ tsp citric acid
- Coconut oil cooking spray (Pam makes or you can use any)

NOTE: any time I say to stir, try to minimize bubbles

Steps

- Pour water into saucepan and add the lecithin and citric acid

- Let that sit to allow the gelatin to bloom for about 5-10 minutes
- Add the syrup to the water/jello mixture and gently stir together
- Over medium-low heat, heat up the mixture while slowly stirring. Do this until the liquid becomes clear with no visible grains, until you start to see some foam appear along the edges. While stirring, keep scraping the side around the edge of the pot to prevent too much sticking.
- Take it off the heat and start slowly pouring in your THC oil while stirring to combine into the water mixture. It might take upwards of 5 minutes of stirring to completely emulsify, depending on the source of THC (oil will take much longer compared to distillate)
- Let it sit for 10 minutes, stirring every minutes or two slowly to maintain the emulsification and to prevent a skin from forming on top and along the edges
- While it sits, VERY lightly spray the silicone molds with the coconut oil cooking spray (the less you spray on, the less you'll have to rub off once they're done. Try not spraying any into a few to see if you even need this next time)
- Warm up the squeeze bottle under hot running water, then pour in the mixture, making sure to scrape

Also to note - total cost for one 10mg red gummy (due to the high cost of sativa oils). Compare the cost of the oils and the 45 minutes of time it takes to make the gummies to the cost of legal oils. I'm always looking for advice on how to make the potency of 20-30mg THC/ml.

Looks great! Anyone know if there are plans to open the market up for bottled distillate? I figure we will eventually get there.

How gummy are they compared to store bought candy? I made some simple jello gummies yesterday but the texture/chewyness isn't quite right
