Speaking from an ethanol extra point of view, I'll note that when doing a thorough wash of the decarbed flower, the resulting extract is a vibrant green and has almost ZERO weedy/earthy taste.

If I don't do that wash, the resulting extract is a mix of dark yellow, brown and green and reeks of weedy/earthy tastes.

I've had friends try to "call me out" for lying about what and how much I put in my butter, when I make it clear to the people I plan on sharing them with: the recipe, the ingredients/additions/substitutions made (food allergies are scary yo) and what bud I'm using. I use a bunch of kief and mid grade bud and make about 3 cups of super potent butter for a batch of brownies. I still have no clue what I'm doing with ratio or THC content but I think I'm doing decently
