Second thoughts about Edifier R1280DB

Review/Discussion

I was on the lookout for a good sound and found these Edifier R1280DB on Amazon. There was zero discount so I paid full price for them.

I don't know if this is just me but I am not liking the bassy nature of these. I have set the Bass to negative and treble to 75% Still, the bass is overpowering the rest of the music. Also, I found these to be Boomy(if thats a word).

I dont know what I was expecting. These are really good speakers and I really want to like them. I came from Macbook M1 Speakers lol. Maybe I got used to the non existence of bass on them, but they sounded clear and bright!. This is not the case with these.

I did an experiment. Played the same song simultaneously on Mac and These speakers. I put the mac near me and moved away from the speakers. I found what I was looking for. I liked the clarity of Mac and Lows of these mixed. Like I need the bass to be strong and not boomy. Maybe its my room as its mostly empty and not sound

Is this a whimsical hobby you will put down in a few months or something you want to enjoy for years to come ?

Can you save $250 and get some passive ELAC 4" for around $150 and $80-$100 on a class D amp?
