Need help deciphering new LG Ultrafine model number 32UP83A - 32" 4k IPS

There's a new LG 32" 4k ips, 32UP83A-W. Anyone know how's it compare to LG 32UN650?

The specs seem identical besides the inclusion of USB-c on the 32UP83A, but it's 2 model years newer.

Would the newer panel be higher quality, just being 2 years newer? Is it just the same monitor with usb-c added maybe?

edit: 12/9/21 it's funny that this thread is one of the only places online discussing this monitor.

I ended up getting a 32UN880 for $500 on cyber monday and I'm happy with it though I wish the stand rotated a full 360.

From studying the specs I believe the 32UP83A, 32UN650 and 32UN880 are all using the same panel, with the differences being USB-c and the stands. Hopefully some reviews can confirm soon!

I also did, it's a Christmas gift for my 2 teens I opened one of them and tested it at home and I love that it has a lot of inputs especially USB-C. It works with the Calibration tool although I don't know how to use it yet. I watched some 4K videos and it's really good. It maybe an overkill for them but had to take advantage of the $60 discount on LG during the Holidays.

24in 1080p 144hz -

- » Acer Nitro VG240Y or Acer Nitro XV240Y - Same price, just different stands. Freesync. The XV240Y OC's to 165hz. IPS panels
- » BenQ MOBIUZ EX2510 – 1080p 144hz IPS, 24.5". Aesthetically beautiful and a fantastic alternative to the Acer Nitro.
- » AOC C24G1 - VA, but a good budget option. Not best for fast paced gaming but usually can be found on good sales.
- » Asus TUF VG259QM - 25" and 280hz so it's perfect for competitive gaming.
- » VIOTEK GFV24C - Great design and thin bezel. VA and a great budget option for 144hz 1080p.

1440p 144hz

- » Acer Nitro XV272U - IPS, Considered to be the best budget monitor in this category
- » LG 27GL83A-B - IPS, - Reddit favorite mid-range monitor. Contrast is ok. Best combo of performance and value.
- » LG27GP850-B – Native 165hz. Higher end version of the one above. Better colors so if you're into photo editing this is better.
- » Dell S2721DGF - IPS, 1440p, 165hz, Freesync - Higher end but built on a great legacy. Often OOS
- » Samsung Odyssey G5 – Curved and sometimes on a great sale. VA panel.
- » Alienware AW2721D – 1440p, 240hz, IPS, G-Sync, Just a beast of a monitor

Ultrawide 1440p 144hz

- » MSI OPTIX 341CQR - VA, great budget option for a gaming ultrawide.
- » LG 34GP83-AB - IPS, 3rd generation of what is considered to be top of the line ultrawide monitors.
- » LG 34GK950F-B - IPS, older version of the 34GP83-AB but a little cheaper.
- » Samsung Odyssey G9 – The best of the best. 1440p, 240hz, 49inch, G-Sync & Freesync. Enough said.

4K

- » ASUS TUF Gaming VG289Q1A – 4k, 60hz, freesync, good entry level 4k gaming monitor.
- » LG 27GN950-B – 144hz native, considered to be pretty top notch. No ghosting, 1ms response time.

most of those are focus on gaming, I don't care about gaming, I care about picture quality for work on design and stuff like that.

I find it very strange that this 32UP83A shows it was released in Sept and nobody has any articles or reviews about it...

my question is, the 32 is the "Dad" of the LG 27UP850-W ???

LG 27UP850-W vs LG 32UP83A-W ???

I just bought this monitor. Open box special on Amazon for 505 before tax and shipping. Can't find any information either but naturally stumbled upon this article.. Go figure.

Running a 2017 MPB 13" i7 so the USB-C is great for me. Going from a LG 29" Ultra-wide so this will be a huge upgrade. Mac does not seem to be compatible anymore without 3D party software which I have been using for year and is now failing me.

Wondering if this will be too big. excited to try it regardless.

Also looking to purchase this model, since it's on sale. But like you guys said there's not much info out there for it. Anyone could chime in and let me know how's it holding up Need help comparing the newest HP Omen 27i (27I 8AC94AA#ABA) vs the LG Ultragear 32" (32GN63T-B) on sale at Costco right now. The price difference is drastic and they seem very similar.
