Downloading from Tubi?

Question

(Forgive me if this has been discussed ad nauseam, but I did a search and couldn't find anything within at least the past year..)

What is the best way to download from Tubi nowadays? I feel like only a few months ago it was a much easier process, but now it seems to be a bit more of a challenge. If it's a browser add-on, an online converter, certain software— I'm open to whatever works.

Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated. Thanks, everyone.

if it's not encrypted, then look for the m3u8 file in your browser network tab.

And use yt-dlp or N_m3u8DL-RE to download.

If it's encrypted, then it's the usual widevine stuff. So find the PSSH in the m3u8 file.

Look for the license url. And use both on cdrom project to get your key.

Then N_m3u8DL-RE to download using those infos

It can be very difficult to distinguish which of the many m3u8 files available is the right one; especially when it comes to various available bitrates. I have an m3u8 downloader add-on which works well for other sites, but Tubi is one of the more challenging ones.

the only site I use other than pirate. I don't give a fuck because I sit through maybe 2 total minutes of commercials through an entire movie and even less commercials the more you watch. so I really don't understand wanting to download from it. and if you really don't want ads at all.there are ways around that also...and I consider tubi a bit of an archivist in itself given some content you can find on there you can't anywhere else and MOST of that rare content they never remove EVER.

Are you talking about the ad supported streaming app?
