when does the effect of new journey+ start?

Discussion

so i just beat the game and i started new journey plus and i just got BD-1 i dont have all the 9 stims and i dont have the echo's or the skills so does it kick in later in the game or do i have to get everything?

New Journey+ happens right when the game starts. It transfers over the ponchos, BD-1 skins, etc. You will still have to collect the stims, echoes, and skills because it'd break progression otherwise.

- Ponchos
- Kyber crystals and Lightsaber parts
- BD-1 skins
- Stinger Mantis skins

Plus you get access to:

- Cal's Inquisitor outfit
- Red kyber crystal

However some things are reset and have to be collected again:

- Force echoes
- Force and Life Essences
- Stims
- BD-1 scans and scomp link
- Doublesaber upgrade
- Terrarium seeds
- Force abilities (push, pull and double jump)
- All skill tree points and upgrades

Basically anything purely cosmetic is kept, if it affects gameplay it will not be kept.

It's not really a New Game +, you only get the cosmetic stuff.

New journey plus only lets you keep your cosmetics nothing else

It boils down to this, if it's story-relevant, you have to unlock it again.

am i the only one that doesn't see the point in this? i would like a red lightsaber in my original game not on a new game in which i have to play through again. also the inquisitor outfit isn't even that good

New journey plus is pointless.

Kind of stupid that it blatantly states "keep all your skills/combat abilities." Lies. Also, I see people stating that you keep your double jump and push/pull. However I just started last night for a couple minutes, and I'm still in the first stage, and have none of this. I understand not having the force abilities because you don't have any combat abilities in the first stage, but no double jump yet either? I'm guessing the jump/push/pull kick in after you leave the scrap yard/intro stage, which I believe is essentially what the OP is wondering about Jedi: Fallen Order now has New Journey+ with an appearance that isn't a poncho, but Inquisitor Kestis and a red saber. All other cosmetics apply too.
