Whats the best razer keyboard?

Question

I just got a death adder, and currently have a logitech g915, a razer keyboard may be in my future.

I dont love clacky keys, currently have brown switches in my g915 and they nice, but would like something even quieter.

If you care for typing sound and feel, the BlackWidow V4 75% is the best keyboard Razer has ever built. Hot-swappable, moddable and fully customizable.

If you want certain gaming features like rapid trigger, then the new Huntsman V3 series should do you well.

Completely agreed! I just got mine and I'm super impressed, build is excellent - tape mod, lubed stabilizers, gasket mounted. I'm really picky about rattley space bars and Razer did well here, mine sounds very good! Plus it's so customizable like you mention.

I just got the new blackwidow v4 pro with yellows. It's an unreal bit of kit and I would gladly recommend it to anyone!

I and all my friends are really happy with Razer Ornata v2. Like actually happy with it, we all consider it the best kb we've used - I bought it first, and my friends ended up getting the same once they tried it.

Unfortunately v2 is no longer sold by Razer, and v3 seems... like downgrade, at least in some areas (looking at you, volume scroll). That said, haven't used v3 so don't know for sure.

User preferences, go to nearby Razer shop, they should be a tester for you to try, that's what I did.

Anything with the orange key. My Blackwidow Elite is aging and I couldn't replace it because there are no more orange keyboards. Smh.

I've never tried a huntsman...but I've had the black widow....that's good..... but I've transitioned to the Corsair K100, and god damn that's great....but I digress....
