Don't you feel the screen is a bit too close?

I tried it and ended up returning it. I have a decently deep desk but unless it's like an RPG or something, it felt way too close. I went with a 32in instead

Indeed. I also just got mine on a 80cm deep desk and it's perfect, feels so immersive. Definitely not too big to use as a monitor lol.

Don't forget that you can add a custom ultrawide resolution like 3840x1600 when it feels to cramped. I swap between native and ultrawide all the time on my 42" C2 using a handy app called monitor profile switcher.

I have the 40" inch C3 model for office/gaming and yes, it is perfect size.

LG don't sell a 40" C3 do they? I can only see a 42" version.

I have a ps5 and pc hooked up to my 42" c2, it's amazing. I also have a 48" C4 as my main TV with a series x.

I have the c2 on a 1.86m karlby worktop with 2 Alex drawers. The depth is only 60cm which seemed too shallow at first but now I'm used to it.

I have a 48 C3 as my gaming and work monitor. It's perfect with the 60x32 inch depth desk on a monitor arm.
