What's the best 42/43" monitor to run 4k@120Hz or 4k@144 Hz?

Hey

I've seen a lot of comments about 4K monitors but not many talking about running 4k@120Hz or 4k@144Hz. So here's my question: what's the best monitor possible, not matter the price, and why this monitor in particular? Also what could be the best value/price choice?

I've seen some, but I can't evaluate the difference between them as I'm not a expert:

- liyama G4380UHSU-B1
- Samsung Odyssey G7 S43CG700NU
- Gigabyte Aorus FV43U VRR
- Asus ROG Swift PG42UQ

I rarely see the Sony x85k recommended, but I feel it ticks every box

The Asus and Gigabyte are great, I can also confirm the Acer Predator series fits nicely, and has great specs. MPT3K uses that on his stream, I run the Asus and love the 1ms response time.

I used iiyama G4380UHSU-B1 and I am 100% satisfied. 4k at 120hz.

Ciao Marzio, per caso hai già provato usare il monitor in risoluzione 2k? (2560x1440)? Come si comporta? Sgranato ? Pensavo usare con un VPIN come hai fatto tu. Grazie mille.

I can tell you the LG C3 OLED is a TV not a monitor and it is 120Hz if you can run it bit if you like to see your game it's not the one for you. Even in a pitch black room it's worthless in the brightness category!! Taking mine back today!!

I believe the LG and Samsung are tv's, not monitors. Ive gone through dozens of the asus xg43uq and the fv43u. Basically the same, small pros and cons to both. No complaints with either, may lean to the fv43u as its super light weight. Main con is a large bottom bezel.

I have an Acer predator I will be testing in the next few weeks as well.

Just got an Ultraman CE. Crazy that these are now below $5k. It's a very good pin with an unusal layout that's tons of fun. One of the best deals around at the moment.
