Is the Lian Li Galahad II Trinity Performance reliable?

Hello,

I'm looking for an AIO Watercooler for my i9 14900k and I'm quite not sure yet. I did a few researches, especially on reddit, youtube, product reviews and saw "a lot of people" complaining about damages and issues. For example, weird pump noises, defective pumps or even "dirt" in the watercooling system. That's why I'm not sure yet whether I should buy the Lian Li Galahad II Trinity Performance or the NZXT Kraken.

Could you guys please share your experiences (good or bad) with Lian Li AIO Watercoolers, especially with this model? Thanks!

It's not very good. It has a problem ramping up fans at no where near the fan curve. And it's pretty noisy at full pump. Which is what you have most pumps on so yeah.....

I swapped it with a 420 Arctic Freeze 3 and could not be a happier. I did put Lian Li in 140 fans on it though

My GIITP going strong 2 months in. Loud at max fan speed.

Wouldn't be surprised if it dies in the next few months.

Edit: 6 months in still ok

Skip it. Get the regular Galahad 2 or the lcd. I have both and they are great.

No experience with newer models, but I do have the original Galahad 360, and pump was quiet at first, but after one year it starts to develop pump whine at full speed.

Lian Li's customer service was great tho, when I contacted them they just sent me a new AIO (same model) without the fans.

I have a GAll on my 9900KS and a Z73 on my 5800X3D. Both perform great, both have shitty software.

I've been using it for 5 months, but after just a few hours of use, the pump is starting to make noises, I'm going to have to ask for the version 2! I really love this AIO but they have this cronical problem :(

They break, Im on the 3rd one.... the pump is not good, and only last about 6-12 months (makes a lot of noise first and then dies) they send me a new, and it breaks, and a new, and it breaks!

do you use that with 13/14th gen intel or amd?im currently on corsair h115i its working without problems 5 years but want to switch 240mm aio because cant fit 280mm aio to small cases. I read pump issues almost all brands on new aio's. did they reduced quality

Well after 3 weeks, 3 motherboards, and 3 sets of ram I finally have my new PC. Still got some tidying up to do but I'm just going to enjoy it for now.
