Windows not recognizing Go installation?

Hi All,

I'm just about to try and dig into learning Go for the first time - trying to get it installed on a Windows machine but even after a successful installation the 'go' command isn't being recognized... I've installed using Chocolatey and pasted the outputs below - has anyone run into this before or know how to resolve this issue?

```
PS C:\Users\> choco install -y golang
Chocolatey v0.11.3
Installing the following packages:
golang
By installing, you accept licenses for the packages.
Progress: Downloading golang 1.17.3... 100%

Did you try the regular cmd and not the powershell command prompt

Wow, it was really that simple... thank you!! Do you have any idea why it works in regular cmd but not powershell? I was always under the impression that powershell is essentially the regular cmd but with extra features so anything that works in cmd should work exactly the same in powershell?
