I have no idea what zero tier is or why it isn't letting me connect to the Wi-Fi.

Windows

As title says, I don't know what Zero Tier is and googling just gives me technical terms I don't understand, is Zero Tier something I should keep? (It was already on my laptop when I got it.) What can I do about it saying the IP address is wrong; not letting me connect to my schools Wi-Fi?

Where did you get the laptop ? There is a substantial risk that your laptop is still connected to a Zerotier network, maybe even on purpose by someone who wants to gain access to your computer.

It shouldn't interfere with your ability to connect to a school WiFi or any other network.

The first thing you should do is unplug and disconnect that computer from any networks.

Then, look for the ZeroTier One app. On Windows, click the window button and type "ZeroTier" or look in the app directory.

When the orange ZeroTier icon appears in your Taskbar (usually you need to click the up-arrow on the lower right taskbar near your network configuration icon) you can examine it to see what networks it is connected to.

I got it around 2021, it was a gift from someone I trust who recently passed so I doubt someone is watching lol. I don't have the Zero Tier app at all which is why I'm really confused it's interfering with things.

The new quest app for steam link doesn't seem to let you use wifi to host your computer's steam vr content for some reason - is this a bug or a technical limitation?
