I haven't had any problems, only my 4gb of ram. Maybe GenP just trying to get more to use their own by making a bad face of m0nkrus. People have been using m0nkrus this ages, if something happened it would be big news surely.

Exactly, and if you look at the posts of people claiming malware, none of them have proof of anything. They just say "this looks weird" "this is connecting to this and I'm not sure why". IF YOU'RE NOT SURE WHY THEN ASK MONKRUS!

People have been talking about monkrus hiding malware for a year or so... but i've yet to see anyone provide any evidence of any malware.

If there's any evidence, though, I'd love to see it.

According to what I read, this only applies to the Master Collection that Monkrus released, not to the individual programs.

Applying a "crack" directly to the adobe creative cloud products (basically download photoshop, premiere, after effects ... etc using the official adobe method which is via the creative cloud app, and then applying a patch to these products).

Used Monkrus for install, and after a while this shows up. I don't have CC installed, so there were no updates. How can I get rid of this?
