Setting up reverse proxy to subdomain

I have MediaCMS set up on a subdomain, and I would like to be able to access it from path on the root domain. That is, it is currently hosted and accessible at <https://media.example.com>, and I would like to be able to go to <https://example.com/media> to use it.

I've tried the following configuration file for the example.com server block, but when I access example.com/media, it gives an error, which I assume is generated by MediaCMS, that simply says "you are lost!". Does anyone know how to get this working?

```
server {
    root /var/www/example.com/html;
    index index.php index.html index.htm index.nginx-debian.html;
    server_name example.com www.example.com;

You want to access it both ways in parallel? (Some Web applications need to know where they live, so I guess you would have to work with URL rewrites to fool the CMS). (I haven't studied your input in detail so far)

Did you ever figure this out?

Oh I don't remember, sorry. I abandoned that project a while ago.
