I have multiple Adobe licenses, and I run pirated versions because they are a better experience. Fuck you Adobe.

If they make it one time payment they might as well release it for free, in their minds. They want no pirates and the subscription money, they wanna have their cake and eat it

Im quite sure adobe's business model is more about targetting the large businesses who can pay the expensive fees for hundereds of employees. And for people getting into industry they make it very cheap (like $20 a month, plus many education places will give it for free) so that it becomes the industry standard. They aren't targetting the individuals who will pirate it.

One time payment for main software then subscription for "cloud" features. This is the only way i'd consider buying adobe again
