I'm a massive savings nerd. Here are the stupidest money mistakes I see people make.

1. Overpaying for car insurance The average American saves a whopping $410+ a YEAR (source) when they switch auto insurance carriers - sometimes significantly more than that: I saved $1,300 this year. The reason: some carriers offer discount prices to new customers when they switch. Take 30 seconds and go to a 3rd party comparison site (Coverage.com and Auto-Savings.com are both fine) to see if you can find cheaper rates. You'll likely save yourself a bunch of money. Some people suggest switching...

I so appreciate the buyers guide available. My family just moved into 40yr old house in the deep south (it's hot and humid here). The air up stairs feels heavy and it smells musty. I want a purifier that will help with those things. What category should i look at to buy the right kind of purifier for me? Thank you Edit to add: Rule 4: Country - United States Volume - 7,200 total (900sqft with 8 ft ceilings) it's broken down into 3 bdrooms, 1 bathroom, and a hallway Filtration needs - want something to help with musty smell...
