Fitgirl Repacks Installer turning "Invisible" on Fedora 38.

Title. Whenever I try to run the installer through Lutris I'm prompted to choose a language for the installation. After choosing English, the installer's window turns black for a few seconds and then disappears. I know it's still running because I can hear the Fitgirl song in the background. But I don't know how to make it appear again.

I already tried enabling the "virtual desktop" option in both Lutris and through winecfg. They don't seem to have any effect on it. Also tried running the installer with Steam and it didn't work either.

Is there a way to solve this or an alternative for installing Fitgirl Repacks on Fedora 38?

System specs:

Fedora 38. I installed it a few days ago and I'm still setting things up to my liking. I have Windows 10 installed in another drive.

Try running the installer in a virtual desktop:

wine explorer /desktop=name,1280x720 setup.exe

Thank you, this works.

Follow up questions: what does "wine explorer" means in this command?

I install them through Bottles, but I had the same problem. I resolved it forcing Gamescope on that bottle, so the installer is forced to show. No problems since then.

Thanks for the advice. I just installed the DODI repacks version of Rayman Legends. The installer ran without issue, but now when trying to launch the game it says that an uplay account is required to play the game. Do you have a clue why this happened?

Thanks !
Enabling Gamescope did the trick for me too

You mean like, switching Gnome for something else, like KDE for example? Can I do that on Fedora or do I have to install another distro?
