Is it too late for a medical profession?

I'm 30 years old and looking to become a psychiatrist. Due to my own mental illness I feel like it took me a very long time to find something I was actually passionate about, but the amount of schooling would be a minimum 12 years if I'm understanding it correctly. I know I can stop before med school but psychiatrist is the only profession I've seen in the field that seems financially incentivizing. I'm just worried I'm underestimating how difficult all of this will be.
