Is this game not really made for multiplayer ?

Question?

I don't know I'm just lvl 58 I've just start monolith And it feel like the game is heavy solo oriented ? The only time I saw players was in the city's ? Not in the actual map ? Maybe it's just my perception of the game but It feel like a solo game. No lfg, no map where you can see player except the town if they are not in you group already ?

How monolith work if you play duo ? They both cleared in each group member « story » ?

Coming from Diablo 4 I feel like Last epoch did everything better but not the actual multiplayer ? It bother me because it was the reason I buy the game in the first place I don't really like playing solo much

This genre in general isnt typically tailored towards multiplayer outside of trading ect, even in diablo, outside of seeing random players running around, theres hardly any interaction, when it comes to playing together, most of the time, whoever has the quicker build will end up just killing everything while the other player chases them around

Because that's how aarpgs are. The multiplayer is the ability to play with friends and global chat.

D4 is the outlier in this genre when it comes to multiplayer that was quite controversial when it was revealed with their open world with other players. A lot of people were sceptical because it was seen as an odd MMO/aarpg combo

It's a singleplayer game, that they added co-op to. Your perception is pretty accurate, it was never designed as a multiplayer game and none of the systems are balanced around it. It's still a single player game, but you have the option to play with friends if they also play.

Quest progression will benefit you both if you're in the same area, but monolith won't be as you each have different monolith layouts. That is something the Devs are considering, but probably not top of list at the moment.

Does that mean that there is no reason to play monolith in group except if u know someone that can clear better stage than yours to actually get better loot ?

It's not multiplayer, it's more like coop game when you tag along with your friends.

Same feeling here. There's no room list like d2 or poe, there's no auto joining other ppl who are on the same quest like d3. You can tell that multiplayer was an afterthought.
