For all the people downvoting and saying "well duh, that's in the patch notes", this information is useful for people who joined after said patch and who likely don't read notes for patches that happened before they joined

Trolls and shitposters.

I personally knew this, but still gave you an upvote. We can't individually know everything, sharing knowledge is a great thing, don't hesitate to post if you think it's something that could be useful to others!

How many people think the average player reads the patch notes?? I'd put money on that it's less than 25%.
